PARTY PRINCIPLES
REPUBLICANS BELIEVE

1. That the individual citizens are willing and capable of managing their own affairs without government intervention.

2. That the local, state and national governments must pursue policies designed to encourage individual initiative and induce people to be responsible for their own economic, political, and social well-being.

3. That the primary function of government is to protect the life, common liberty and property of the governed, to prevent fraud and misinterpretation, and to invoke a common justice.

4. That when a function is undertaken by government, it should be performed by that government closest to the people which will provide as much direct control by those affected as reason and wisdom require to assure freedom and liberty to all citizens with justice under the law.

5. That our national stability and expansion of the free enterprise system can be best assured by application of the Constitutional principles that unite the American people.

Republican Women host area legislators

By Gary Lookadoo
Daily Record staff

ROGERS — The Republican Women's Club of Benton County welcomed most of Benton County's state lawmakers in a Tuesday meeting.

State Sen. Fay Boozman III, R-Rogers; State Sen. John Brown III, R-Siloam Springs; State Rep. Dave Bisbee, R-Rogers; State Rep. Jim Hendren, R-Sulphur Springs; and State Rep. Randy Bryant, R-Pea Ridge all reviewed the just concluded legislative session, which included passage of plans to fund state highways and other matters.

A major component of the plan would be a proposed $3.5 billion bond issue that will be submitted to the voters.

Also on the ballot in the special election would be a 5-cent per gallon increase in the motor fuels tax on diesel fuel. Both ballot issues must be approved before the highway program can be launched.

Two other tax bills were part of the highway program, and the implementation of either would depend on passage of the bond issue and diesel fuel tax. One of the taxes would levy a new, 6.5 percent tax on gasoline at the wholesale level, which when implemented would amount to about 5 cents per gallon. The other tax would increase the state's general sales tax by a half-cent and earmark proceeds to the highway program.

The project would help widen Arkansas Highway 412 to four lanes from Springdale east to Washington County; put four lanes on Arkansas Highway 62 in Rogers on to Gateway; and and put four lanes on Arkansas Highway 102 throughout the state, a state Highway Department spokesman said earlier this week.

Several legislators were critical of the modified version of the governor's highway program.

"I'm totally opposed to that plan," Bryant said, and all other lawmakers expressed reservations about the plan.

The state loses revenues under the plan, as cars and trucks become more fuel efficient, Brown said.

Little known laws just passed will have some large effects

By Gary Lookadoo
Daily Record staff

ROGERS — Not all legislation approved by the now adjourned 80th General Assembly is well known, but it still will have an impact in the state.

The state legislature approved a major revision of the state's public school funding plan and a highway construction blueprint, among other major legislation.

But other, less well-known legislation was also approved, and area lawmakers used a recent meeting of the Republican Women's Club to note some of this legislation.

State Rep. Dave Bisbee, who helped draft a state version of the federal motor voter law, also steered to passage a law that will allow workers at the polls on Election Day to use more convenient computer-generated lists of registrants, replacing heavy, bulky notebooks now used for that purpose.

"We don't have to carry the old binders out anymore," Bisbee, a former Republican Party chairman for Benton County, said.

Bisbee also noted the approval of joint primaries, calling it "the single largest step forward the Republicans have made in 100 years."

At the same meeting, state Sen. John Brown III, R-Siloam Springs, was lauded for securing passage of four anti-crime measures aimed at juvenile crime.

One bill allows certain juvenile offenders to be charged as adults in circuit court; another allows juvenile court judges to suspend juvenile delinquents' driving privileges; still another stiffens penalties for selling drugs near community centers, public housing projects, and drug-abuse treatment centers; and a fourth bill reclassified murders committed in drive-by shootings from Class Y felonies (punishable by 10 to 40 years in prison or life imprisonment) to capital offenses (punishable only by life in prison or death.

Other little-noticed legislation of the just completed session would:

- prohibit police departments in small towns from requiring officers to meet quotas for enforcing traffic laws.
- required school buses to be equipped with crossing gates and a flashing white strobe light to enhance student safety.
- authorized suspension of driver's licenses and license plates along with business, professional or occupational licenses of Arkansans who fail to pay child support.
- increased the authority of the Arkansas Ethics Commission, allowing administrative fines, extending the time limit for ethics investigations, and providing for public inspection of documents when there has been a finding of violation.

Boozman not so cynical

Daily Record staff

ROGERS — Although he ran on a platform that he described as "cynical" toward government, state Sen. Fay Boozman, R-Rogers, said Tuesday he's changed his mind, in some ways.

"I was very impressed," with the number of dedicated people in public service in the state legislature, Boozman said.

The senator, who just completed his first regular legislative session since his election in 1994, said he, like others, had pictured a city where "somebody had deals in dark hallways and there were drunken parties."

But, he said, "that's not the case. ... There's a great deal of accountability."

Nevertheless, Boozman said, the state government is too big, just as he said it was in his campaign for the Senate. While there is now "not a great deal done to increase the size of government ... there is absolutely no desire to make it smaller," he said.

And the senator, who ran on an anti-tax pledge, said he was sorry but not surprised to learn that, although state revenues are increasing at about $50 million a year, there's no support in Little Rock for a tax rebate.

"There's no thought of turning that back to the people," he said.

AFRW PRESIDENT'S REPORT 1995

"As President of AFRW you learn from the some of the most wonderful women in the world." This was how Jerri Pruden described her service as AFRW President. How right she was.

The past two years have been enlightening, exciting, happy and proud years for me. Thousands of miles and visits to almost all our unit clubs have given me reason to be proud of the Arkansas Federation of Republican Women and the women who make up our membership.

At our December 1994 reporting period AFRW was made up of 33 clubs and 1436 members. N. Pulaski Co. club was chartered in 1993, Crittenden Co. RW, NE Arkansas RW and Greene County joined us in the Spring of 1994. November of 1994 was the date of Scott County Republican Women's Charter from NFRW and Desha County Republican Women's Organization joined us n March of this year as did Fairfield Bay Area Republican Women. With us today is the new President of Madison County Republican Women who are finishing their paperwork for Charter. 7 new clubs filled with women who are exciting and eager to work for a 2 party system in Arkansas.

We haven't stopped there, Clark County Republican Women have already had their organizational meeting and Miller County will be organizing soon. We also have our eye on Grant County, Poinsett County, Clay County, Sevier County, Montgomery County and more.

The Arkansas Federation of Republican Women have proven our worth as the "Educational Arm" of the Republican Party. Our Campaign Schools were well attended (at Heber Springs maybe too well attended) and a testimonial received from a candidate says it best "AFRW Campaign School elected 2 more in Faulkner County". We do make a difference.

Our Ballot Security Program made it possible in some counties to have honest results of elections for the first time. 8 Seminars presented in cooperation with the Republican Party of Arkansas and 7 more on our own, resulted in hundreds of Poll Watchers on Election Day who were well trained and able to field problems before the voter lost their vote. We do make a difference.

How exciting it is to have 2 United States Congressmen, a Lt. Governor, State Representatives, an AFRW member who is State Senator, and numerous JP's attend our AFRW Convention. It shows that the last 40 years have shown WE DO MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

It has been an honor and pleasure to serve as your President. As we celebrate our 40th year in Arkansas let us proudly look back at where we've been and chart a course into the future.

I know we can continue to MAKE A DIFFERENCE. I know we can be an energizing force toward a 2 PARTY SYSTEM IN ARKANSAS.

Thankyou for allowing me to serve as your President.

Mary

AFRW Convention Reflects Creativity, Dedication

by Tammy Hensel

From the opening bazaar on Friday to the last of the awards given at the Awards Luncheon Saturday, the AFRW 20th Biennial Convention reflected the creativity and dedication of the hard working Republican Women in the state of Arkansas. Held at the beautiful Lake Hamilton Resort in Hot Springs May 19-20, the event was filled with enthusiasm which even impressed special guest NFRW President Charlotte Mousel.

Friday's activities began with a bazaar for unit clubs to display their fund-raising wares. Many beautiful handmade items including jewelry, stuffed elephants, tote bags, collars, vests, wreaths and more tempted Convention-goers. Scrapbooks were on display nearby.

At 5:00 p.m., those present were given their choice of two workshops to attend. A PRESIDENT'S WORKSHOP for unit club presidents or their representative was given by the team of Phillips and Phillips (Immediate Past AFRW President Toni Phillips and First Vice President Joyce Phillips). A GENERAL WORKSHOP was presented by Ina Martin (Third District Director and District Directors Chairman) and Libby Jackson (First District Director).

The Hon. Ted Mullenix, House Minority Leader in the State Legislature, kicked-off our Buffet Dinner and Auction by welcoming us to his hometown. Our special speaker for the evening was The Hon. Tim Hutchinson, U.S. Congress, District 3. He praised our support for the new REPUBLICAN majority in Congress and pledged to continue to represent our values.

With much hilarity and old-fashioned fun, convention-goers raised around $1,500 at our auction. The event was chaired by Joyce Phillips. The Auctioneer, Clay Herrmann, kept the bids going, assisted by our two convention pages: Sametta Klinetob, a member of the Garland County RW, and Lisel Klinetob, a member of the local TARS. The two most exciting bids of the evening were for a white elephant plant table sold, for $125, and a "Slick Willie" floor mat, sold for $115.

Early birds Saturday morning had a continental breakfast and re-visited the bazaar, while club presidents enjoyed breakfast with AFRW President Mary Harvey. The Hon. Jay Dickey, U.S. Congress, District 4, and The Hon. Mike Huckabee, Lt. Governor,

Mary's Minute

by Mary Harvey
President, AFRW

40 Years and Growing – What a wonderful convention!

Around 200 Republican women gathered at the Lake Hamilton Resort for the 20th Biennial Convention of the Arkansas Federation of Republican Women.

Two hundred Republican Women dedicated to a TWO PARTY SYSTEM IN ARKANSAS.

Our National President, Charlotte Mousel repeatedly commented such talent, what enthusiasm, this is one of the best conventions I've attended (and she's been to a lot!).

If you missed our convention – we know you're sorry you missed so much – be sure to go to the next one.

Speaking of the next one – our National Convention is being held Sept. 15-17 in Albuquerque, New Mexico. See your Club President for forms and information. As anyone who has attended a National Convention will tell you – you don't want to miss it.

This Fortieth year of AFRW is a very important year. We have made great strides in membership – we are up to a membership of 1400+ but we have a long way to go. Each and every one of you need to reach out into your community; each club should look across the County Line, all of us TOGETHER CAN GROW AFRW to 2000 members by 1996.

Thank you for your confidence in electing me your President for another two years. We will – TOGETHER – strive to become indispensable to the Republican Party.

Let us make this Political Season more effective by practicing our motto:

PRIDE:
Pride in our achievements, Pride in each other, Pride in our Party and its leaders, Pride in ourselves.

DETERMINATION:
Let us be Determined to work for free and honest elections in Arkansas, let us be Determined to elect Republicans to office from the local level through the national level, let us be Determined to protect our Freedoms and our Nation by standing up to those determined to destroy it.

LOYALTY:
Loyalty to our God, our Country, our Party. Let us be Loyal to each other and remember that together we can accomplish almost anything we set out to do.

TOGETHER WITH PRIDE, DETERMINATION AND LOYALTY the Arkansas Federation of Republican Women will grow and become a stronger partner of the Republican Party. The last 40 years have cultivated the political climate and sewn the seeds. It is up to us to fertilize the growth of the Republican Party and bring in a harvest of a two Party Political System in Arkansas.

· THANKYOU · THANKYOU · THANKYOU ·

Our AFRW Convention was a Huge success! As you all know, such an undertaking become a success because of successful people.

Also thankyou to Richard Bingham, Associate Member, for serving as Treasurer of the Convention.

The Registration was handled smoothly, the Decorations were delightful, Public Relations were handled expertly, the signs were outstanding, the Door Prizes, Packets, Scrapbook room, etc. were all handled beautifully.

Our Congressmen, the Honorable Tim Hutchinson and Jay Dickey honored us with their presence and inspired us with their words. As always, Lt. Governor Mike Huckabee went out of his way to support the AFRW and his speech will stay with us. Representative Ted Mullenix, Arkansas Minority Leader was most accommodating, as was our own State Senator Peggy Jefferies.

The Board of Directors worked long and hard to present two wonderful workshops. The President's Workshop was presented by Immed. Past President Toni Phillips, and our now 1st Vice President Joyce Phillips. Joyce also served on the Program Committee and was Chairman of the Auction Committee as well as researched and presented our 40th Anniversary program. RNC Chairman
HALEY BARBOUR Sets Arkansas Visit

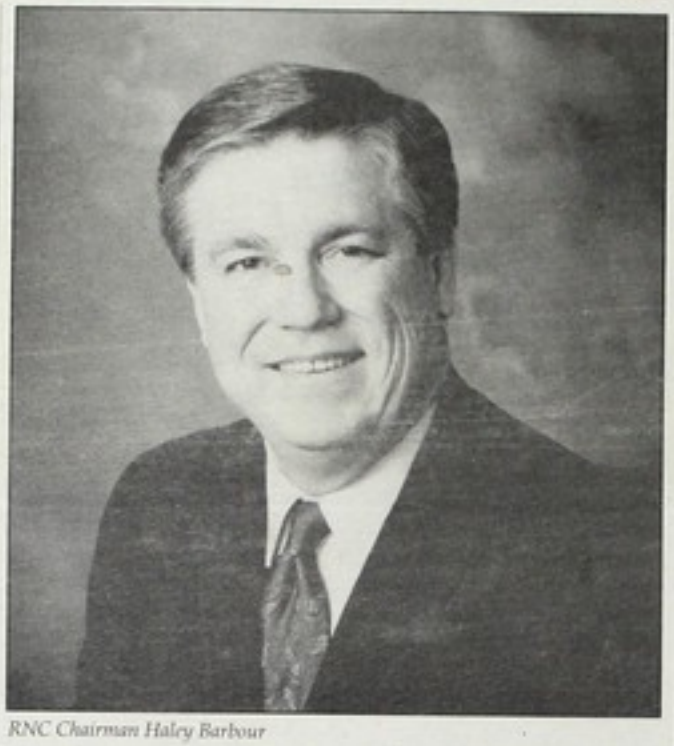
LITTLE ROCK—Arkansas Republican State Party Chairman Asa Hutchinson of Fort Smith has announced that Haley Barbour, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will speak at a fund-raising dinner in Little Rock on August 12.

"We welcome Chairman Barbour to Arkansas and see this event as the kick-off to the 1996 political campaign season in Arkansas," Hutchinson said. "We have set our sights on making this the most successful fundraising effort ever held by the Republican Party in Arkansas.

"Finance chairman Lloyd Stone of Conway has assembled a team of volunteers to sell tickets to the event," Hutchinson said. "This team, which includes Lt. Governor Mike Huckabee, former Governor Frank White, and others, will be directed by Little Rock financial and development consultant James D. Klote, who will be serving as the volunteer Special Events Chairman for the party. Mr. Klote just completed a multi-million dollar development project for the New Orleans YMCA and has volunteered his services to the party while he is between projects."

James Klote, Special Events Chairman

Barbour was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee in January 1993. Last November, under Chairman Barbour's leadership, Republicans won the greatest mid-term majority Congressional sweep of the 20th century.



RNC Chairman Haley Barbour

The RNC broke all fund-raising records for a non-presidential cycle, donated record-breaking amounts to the largest field of candidates in GOP history, created an award-winning magazine with 500,000 circulation, and built a self-sustaining state-of-the-art television studio that, among other enterprises, produces a weekly national news show.

By the end of his first term, Barbour saw his party take control of both houses of Congress for the first time in 40 years. On January 20, 1995, two years to the day before the next presidential inauguration, Barbour, 47, won unanimous re-election for a second term as Chairman.

Prior to his election as Chairman, Barbour was a practicing attorney and partner in the law firm of Barbour & Rogers, with offices in Mississippi and Washington, D.C. In 1985, he took a hiatus from his law practice to serve Ronald Reagan as director of the White House Office of Political Affairs. Barbour also served as a senior adviser to the George Bush For President Campaign in 1986.

A seventh-generation Mississippian, Barbour was the Republican nominee for the U.S. Senate in 1982, losing to the 35-year incumbent Senator John Stennis. Since 1984, he has served as Republican National Committeeman from Mississippi. He worked in both of the successful Nixon For President campaigns at the state level, then served from 1973 to 1976 as executive director of the Mississippi Republican Party and the Southern Association of Republican State Chairmen.

A Reagan supporter at the 1976 GOP National Convention in Kansas City, he subsequently directed the President Ford campaign in seven states. He has been active since 1976 in Republican campaigns at the state and national level.

Barbour received his law degree from the University of Mississippi in 1973. For 13 years, he was a partner in the law firm of Henry Barbour & DeCell of Yazoo City, where he and his family still reside. Haley and his wife Marcia have two sons. He is a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church of Yazoo City, where he has also taught Sunday School.

"We are honored to have Chairman Barbour take time in his busy schedule to lend his support to our ongoing efforts to build the Republican Party in Arkansas," Hutchinson said. "We now have two of the state's four U.S. Representatives, and a good shot at another Representative's seat and a U.S. Senate seat in 1996. We have an increasing number of elected representatives and senators in the Arkansas General Assembly, and in the courthouses of our state.

"The Republican Party in Arkansas is on the grow, and this fundraising appearance by Chairman Barbour will play a vital role in the success of our Party's growing strength over the next 15 months, to be culminated by sweeping victories in November 1996," Hutchinson said.

Dear ~~Mrs. Allen~~ Geri:

Thank you for helping make the Haley Barbour event in Little Rock such a huge success!

As I reported at the dinner, the Republican Party of Arkansas raised right at $100,000 through the day's activities and we had over 500 in attendance at the evening dinner. It was a great momentum builder and I am grateful for your support.

Haley Barbour will go down in history as one of our truly great party leaders. The enclosed photograph should be a memento that you will enjoy for many years.

Thanks again.

CAMPAIGN HOURS AND DONATIONS REPORTED BY NFRW MEMBER CLUBS

Thirty-two states reported hours and money contributed to campaigns. Less than half of the clubs in the listed states reported their hours. Still our numbers are very good. We reported 3,383,740 million hours donated and if you gave those hours a dollar value of $6.50 per hour it would equal $21,994,306 million dollars. RWC's reported over $900,000.00 in contributions from less than 1/3 reporting. Can you imagine the actual amounts of money, time and effort that the Republican Women's Clubs donated and were not reported? Reporting and documentation would certainly help NFRW and All States and RWC's show their actual contributions and importance to the political process. The women in this Organization are invaluable to their party and their nation. Your overall contribution and influence to the political process is astounding! We sincerely thank you for your sacrifice and effort to ensure that this country continues to be free and revered as the greatest nation on earth.

THE BEST CHOICE FOR AMERICA'S WOMEN

A Brief History of the Republican Party's Support of Women's Suffrage

Prepared by the Office of the Co-Chairman, the Republican National Committee

The Republican Party pioneered the right of women to vote and was consistent in its support throughout the long campaign for acceptance. It was the first major party to advocate equal rights for women and the principle of equal pay for equal work.

The Women's Rights Convention held in Seneca Falls, New York, in 1848, marked the beginning of the women's-suffrage movement in the United States. Two years later there was a nationwide meeting in Worcester, Massachusetts.

In 1868, Republican Senator S.C. Pomeroy of Kansas, introduced the first equal suffrage amendment in Congress. By 1870, the Massachusetts Republican State Convention had already seated two suffragettes, Lucy Stone and Mary A. Livermore, as delegates. In addition, the National Republican Convention of 1872 approved a resolution favoring the admission of women to "wider fields of usefulness" and added that "the honest demand of this class of citizens for additional rights...should be treated with respectful consideration."

Wyoming, the state that pioneered women's suffrage, sent two women, Therese A. Jenkins and Cora G. Carleton, to the 1892 Republican Convention in Minneapolis as alternate delegates. This was the first time women were seated at a Republican national convention. This convention was also the first to be addressed by a woman, Ellen J. Foster, chairman of the Women's Republican Association of the United States. A strong believer in organization, Foster said her Association had prepared work plans for women's involvement in national politics. Copies were given to each delegate and alternate. "We are here to help you," she declared, "and we have come to stay."

At the request of Susan B. Anthony, the 19th Amendment was first introduced in 1878 by Senator A.A. Sargent, a Republican from California. Sargent's amendment (also known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment) was defeated four times by a Democrat-controlled senate. When the Republican Party regained control of Congress in 1919, the Equal Suffrage Amendment finally passed the House in May of that year and the Senate in June.

When the Amendment was submitted to the states, 26 of the 36 states which ratified it had Republican legislatures. Of the nine states which voted against ratification, eight were Democratic. Twelve states, all Republican, had given women full suffrage before the federal amendment was ratified.

On August 18, 1920, Tennessee became the 36th and final state needed to ratify the amendment. The amendment was certified by the nation's Secretary of State on August 26. ◆

Asa Hutchinson

Hutchinson 'interested' in succeeding Pryor

BY LARRY AULT
Democrat-Gazette Staff Writer

Fort Smith lawyer Asa Hutchinson said Saturday he is interested in seeking the U.S. Senate seat being given up next year by Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., but hasn't made a decision about his political future.

"I'm interested in it," Hutchinson said shortly after he resigned from his third term as chairman of the Republican Party of Arkansas at a meeting of the party's Executive Committee in Little Rock.

Hutchinson, 44, has maintained a high profile as state GOP chairman for the past three years. For two years prior to that, he was Republican co-chairman with Little Rock lawyer Sheffield Nelson.

The party's first vice chairman, Phyllis Kincannon of Maumelle, became acting chairman. The committee decided to hold an election in early December to select Hutchinson's successor.

Ruth Whitaker of the Van Buren area; party finance chairman Lloyd Stone of Conway; and Jim Burnett of Clinton, the former head of the National Transportation Safety Board, have been mentioned as possible successors, said a source who did not wish to be named.

While admitting an interest in Pryor's seat, Hutchinson didn't commit to any political agenda. He said he has been encouraged to seek Pryor's seat and is aware of the impact of his statewide name recognition.

"I have time to wait," Hutchinson said. It is "critical to our party to win that race.

"We've elected scores of Republicans at the grass-roots level," Hutchinson said, stressing that the party has become "stronger and more vibrant" as a result.

"We've become a watchdog party," he said, calling the Republican Party "a dog with a loud bark and a mean bite." Hutchinson said this is a new role for the party.

Although Hutchinson declined to say whether he plans to seek a public office, it has been widely assumed he would seek Pryor's seat if Lt. Gov. Huckabee does not run.

Hutchinson said in letters to members of the Executive Committee that he would "consider the opportunity to be a candidate ... This opportunity may or may not open up, but I cannot effectively consider those options as party chairman."

Hutchinson was U.S. attorney for the Western District of Arkansas from 1982-85. He resigned from that job to run for the Senate in 1986 and received 38 percent of the vote in a race against Democrat Sen. Dale Bumpers.

Hutchinson ran for attorney general in 1990, losing to Democrat Winston Bryant, who at that time was lieutenant governor.

Huckabee, the only statewide Republican officeholder, has formed an exploratory committee and started raising money for a Senate campaign.

Family Council Honors Legislators

■ State Sen. Fay Boozman and Rep. Randy Bryant, both of Rogers, were honored recently by the Arkansas Family Council for their work in the 1995 legislative session.

Along with six other legislators from around the state, they received the "Bulldog Award" for "tenaciously" protecting the interests of Arkansas' families.

"While several members of the Arkansas legislature promoted and protected traditional family values, those honored with the Bulldog Award displayed exceptional courage and faithfulness as they stood up for the family," Family Council director Jerry Cox said.

Family Council is a conservative Arkansas-based education and research organization in Little Rock.

Republican Rally Hears Huckabee's Plans

Allan Portman
The Morning News

Silence throughout a large gathering of Republicans Sunday met Sen. Fay Boozman's reading of a prepared statement from Lt. Gov. Mike Huckabee, stating that Huckabee would seek the U.S. senate seat being vacated by

Benton County

Democrat David Pryor.

Most of the crowd at the annual Republican rally already knew the announcement was coming and listened intently along with past GOP chairman Asa Hutchinson at Elmwood Junior High. Huckabee had let the cat out of the bag in an interview Saturday. (See related story on Page 1A.)

"I'm in a position of waiting," Hutchinson said Sunday. "I think Mike is in a good position and will have a good chance of taking the seat. I had said earlier I would not run against him should he decide to run. But a lot can happen in between now and then. He could still become governor. Right now, I'm going to pay taxes like everyone else and raise my children."

Hutchinson resigned as Republican chairman saying a few months ago he would consider a bid for the senate but cautioning supporters he wouldn't run against Huckabee. Sunday, he didn't rule out running for public office but said his plans were in limbo because of the announcement.

"It's not a bombshell at all," Tim Hutchinson, the 3rd District congressman and brother of Asa Hutchinson, said. "I think Mike is in a great position to take the seat. ... It would only strenghten our party."

The congressman was also the main speaker at the fundraiser. Hutchinson said he believed President Clinton would overlook bipartisan politics and sign the Republican balance budget into law. Hutchinson had harsh words for his minority conterparts, however, saying they were using scare tactics to derail what the Republican Congress was trying to accomplish.

"It is sad, I think, that the (Democrat) party that once said we have nothing to fear but fear itself now has nothing to offer but fear itself. We can't be detoured of the proper course we have set by giving in to the agents of fear."

Allan Portman, The Morning News

Family Ties: Coral Hutchinson (standing in middle background) receives a warm welcome from Republicans after being introduced by her son, U.S. Rep. Tim Hutchinson.

Hutchinson said if balancing the budget was easy some congress in the past 25 years would have done it. 1969 is the last time the books were balanced, he said. Not only does the Republican-led Congress plan on balancing the budget in seven years, it plans on creating a billion-dollar surplus in the national treasury.

"We are literally drowning in a sea of red ink," Hutchinson said. "Finally, there is a congress that has passed a balanced budget plan back in the House, and ... I'm confidant ... Sen. Dole will find that other vote so it will pass in the Senate."

There is nothing more important to the American family than balancing the budget, Hutchinson said. He said a child born today would already be $18,000 in debt because of a $4.6 trillion deficit. Within that child's lifetime, he would pay $187,000 in taxes just to pay for the interest on current loans, Hutchinson said.

"Well it should be no surprise that opinion polls show more 18-year-olds believe in UFOs than that they will ever collect Social Security," Hutchinson said.

"For the past 40 years the liberal solution has always been to raise taxes. Everytime Congress raised taxes a dollar, it raised its spending to $1.59. ... That's why Ronald Reagan said never give a big spender a bigger allowance. Giving Washington more money is like giving an 18-year-old car keys and a bottle of wiskey. You just don't do it."

Living up to the nickname given him by then-Gov. Bill Clinton, "No Tax Tim" Hutchinson said it is time to give families a break. Even though balancing the budget is critical, he said, it is not the wrong time to reduce taxes for families. He called taxes the catalyst that destroyed the American family.

"The average middle-class family spends more on taxes — federal state and local — than it does on food, for recreation, clothing and for housing all combined," Hutchinson said.

Because of the tax burden he continued, it takes two people working in the household to make ends meet. He said this is very wrong. How can a mom and dad raise their children if they have to work all the time, Hutchinson asked.

He said Congress needs to give families a $500 tax break for each child under 18. He said for an average family making $25,000 a year, their federal tax liability would be eliminated with the tax credit. For families making $30,000, their federal tax liability would be cut in half.

"So next time they (Democrats) say they're (Republicans) cutting taxes for the wealthy, please remind them whom these cuts will most help," Hutchinson said.

"Mom and dad of middle America who are out there trying to make ends meet and provide for their families and put their kids through college. That's who we're trying help. That's what we're trying to do. And let's face it, who can spend the money better? The bureaucrats in Washington or mom and dad?"

Waiting wears thin; Huckabee will wade in

BY REX NELSON
Democrat-Gazette Political Editor

Lt. Gov. Mike Huckabee will wait no longer to see how Gov. Jim Guy Tucker's legal battles turn out. Huckabee, a Republican from Texarkana, will hold seven news conferences across the state Oct. 25 to formally announce his candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

Huckabee, who in 1993 became the first Republican elected to statewide office in 13 years, set up an exploratory committee earlier this year to begin preparations for a Senate campaign. He held off on a final decision whether to seek the seat being given up next year by Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., after two sets of felony indictments were filed against Tucker.

Huckabee said last week that he doesn't expect Tucker's legal problems to be resolved before the November 1996 election. If Tucker were to be found guilty of any of the counts filed against him, he would have to resign. That would make Huckabee governor.

"I don't anticipate that happening," Huckabee said when asked if he would drop out of the Senate race if he became governor. "Therefore I don't have an answer to your question. I simply don't know what I would do.

"My intention is to run for the U.S. Senate. Period. I don't have a divided mind about what I am doing. The U.S. Senate was my target when I entered politics in 1992, and it is my target now."

Huckabee, a Southern Baptist minister, resigned as pastor of a Texarkana church in 1992 to challenge Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark. He received 40 percent of the vote against Bumpers on Nov. 3, 1992. Then-Gov. Bill Clinton was elected president the same day, opening the door for Huckabee to continue his political career.

On Dec. 12, 1992, Clinton resigned as governor. Tucker, who had been elected to a four-year term as lieutenant governor in 1990, moved into Clinton's old job. That left a vacancy in the lieutenant governor's office.

In July 1993, Huckabee defeated Democratic lawyer Nate Coulter of Little Rock in a special election to determine who would serve the remainder of Tucker's term as lieutenant governor. Huckabee was the first Republican to win a statewide election since Frank White upset Clinton in the 1980 gubernatorial race. Coulter had managed Bumpers' 1992 campaign against Huckabee.

Huckabee was elected to a full four-year term last November with 59 percent of the vote against then-state Sen. Charlie Cole Chaffin of Benton. It was the largest percentage of votes an Arkansas Republican had ever received in a statewide race.

From the moment Pryor announced in April that he would not seek a fourth six-year term, Huckabee appeared the obvious GOP nominee. But his plans were delayed June 7 when a federal grand jury at Little Rock indicted Tucker on three counts, alleging that he concocted a sham 1987 Texas bankruptcy, lied on loan applications and failed to report millions of dollars in profits to the Internal Revenue Service.

Huckabee's political dilemma intensified Aug. 17 when the same grand jury indicted Tucker on 11 felony counts, accusing him of participating in fraudulent financial transactions involving Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan Association and Capital Management Services Inc.

On Sept. 5, U.S. District Judge Henry Woods of Little Rock quashed the first indictment, ruling that Whitewater independent counsel Kenneth Starr exceeded his jurisdiction in requesting the indictment. Woods' ruling has been appealed by Starr to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which has yet to rule.

On Sept. 25, Tucker moved that the second indictment against him also be quashed. The motion is before U.S. District Judge George Howard Jr. of Little Rock.

Huckabee said that while some people have urged him not to run for the Senate because he might become governor, he doesn't anticipate "anything will be resolved any time soon. I expect Jim Guy Tucker will complete his four-year term as governor. Every week it seems there are new motions filed that will create delays. Back when I thought there might be a quick resolution, I postponed my decision on whether to run for the Senate. Knowing how long the legal process is going to take, I now feel liberated to run without a cloud hanging over me."

Huckabee said supporters often tell him they would prefer he serve as governor.

Mike Huckabee

"It's not as if I can call up Jim Guy Tucker and tell him I would like to take over his job next week," Huckabee said. "But my supporters generally are supportive of whatever decisions I make."

Huckabee, 40, is a Hope native and a graduate of Ouachita Baptist University at Arkadelphia. He is married and has three children.

The lieutenant governor has been under heavy pressure from Republican leaders in Washington to make his intentions known so he can begin raising money in earnest. A reception for Huckabee late last month on Capitol Hill was attended by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato of New York, chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Republicans are hopeful of adding to their 54-46 Senate majority. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia on Monday became the eighth Senate Democrat to announce his impending retirement, the fourth from the South. In addition to Pryor and Nunn, Democratic senators who won't run again next year are Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, Bill Bradley of New Jersey, James Exon of Nebraska, Howell Heflin of Alabama and Paul Simon of Illinois. Sen. Hank Brown of Colorado is the only Republican to have announced he won't run again next year.

Democratic pollster Alan Secrest told The New York Times that the Democratic Party has only a 40-45 percent chance of holding onto Nunn's seat.

"The region has realigned," said Celinda Lake, a Democratic pollster. "Things like Jimmy Carter's election (as president in 1976) were temporary, as is the fact that we had some long-term officeholders there. That allowed us to postpone dealing with the problem."

Huckabee hopes to be part of that realignment. He said his decision was made easier by four recent polls — one conducted by his senatorial exploratory committee and the other three conducted for private interests — showing him with solid leads over Attorney General Winston Bryant, the early front-runner for the Democratic nomination.

"The only demographic groups I am losing are those with less than a high school education and those above the age of 65," Huckabee said. "I lead in all four congressional districts and have less than 50 percent of the vote only in the 1st District."

Challenging Bryant for the Democratic nomination will be Jonesboro lawyer Bill Bristow, state Sen. Lu Hardin of Russellville, Little Rock lawyer Sandy McMath and Cabot resident Mark Brown.

Huckabee is expected to be unopposed for the Republican nomination. Fort Smith lawyer Asa Hutchinson, who ran unsuccessfully against Bumpers in 1986, resigned last month as chairman of the Arkansas Republican Party to prepare for a Senate race in the event Huckabee did not run. Hutchinson has said he has no plans to challenge Huckabee and split the party.

On the basis of the polls and the fact that he probably will be able to save his money and energy while Democrats engage in a heated primary battle, does Huckabee consider it his race to lose?

"It's a major mistake for anyone to be presumptuous in Arkansas politics," he said. "It's an even larger mistake to do so as a Republican."

Huckabee plans to hold news conferences Oct. 25 at Little Rock, Texarkana, El Dorado, West Memphis, Jonesboro, Springdale and Fort Smith to announce his candidacy. He had hoped to make the announcement this week, but those plans were postponed when Tucker scheduled a special legislative session that will begin Tuesday. The lieutenant governor presides over the state Senate when the Legislature is in session.

Fund-raising efforts already have begun. On Tuesday night, some of the biggest names in the politically influential poultry industry will host a fund-raising reception for Huckabee at Little Rock.

Another major fund-raising event will occur Nov. 2 and be co-hosted by several well-known corporate executives, including Jack Stephens of Stephens Inc. and Joe Ford of the Alltel Corp.

Huckabee thinks the race will cost almost $2 million.

In state races, Arkansas business interests traditionally have supported Democrats.

"The hallmark of my previous campaigns has been the support of common folks," Huckabee said. "My average contribution in 1993 was $9. Many of the people who supported me were those who had never participated in politics before. They are still with me. I would like to think the reason new people are joining them from the business sector and elsewhere is because they realize I am not someone they must fear. When Arkansans view you as legitimate, they will get on board no matter what your party affiliation."

Huckabee, a former president of the 500,000-member Arkansas Baptist State Convention, had strong support from fundamentalists in his previous races. Opponents sometimes have tried to use that against him, casting him as a narrow-minded minister controlled by the likes of Pat Robertson and Jerry Falwell.

"Arkansas voters have a proven record of being independent," Huckabee said. "The election political scientists love to point to occurred in November 1968 when Arkansans voted for George Wallace for president, J. William Fulbright for senator and Winthrop Rockefeller for governor on the same day. We usually have elected Democrats in this state, but Arkansans will make exceptions for people they like and trust."

Huckabee said that during his more than two years as lieutenant governor, he believes voters have learned that "I have a capacity to discuss things other than religion. By the same token, I am not someone who is ashamed of his roots. I am not going to back away from something like proclaiming Christian Heritage Week just because the ACLU might not agree with it. There is a lot of religious bigotry out there that we ought to avoid.

"But let me make it clear that I am not running for Senate chaplain. I have opinions on a number of issues, and I believe there are voters who are not scared off by my value system."

In Hutchinson's losing race against Bumpers in 1986 and then-U.S. Rep. Ed Bethune's losing race against Pryor in 1984, the Republican candidates were criticized for allowing their campaigns to be controlled by Washington-based operatives. Huckabee is advised by Connecticut consultant Dick Morris, who also advises Clinton.

"I think there is more of a danger that the national Democrats will get in and try to preserve the seat than there is that the national Republicans will come in and run my campaign," Huckabee said.

He said many voters had assumed "all along that I had made up my mind to run. That was not the case. I had a calculated plan to determine if this was the right race at the right time."

Huckabee is one of 12 national co-chairmen for Dole's presidential campaign. Dole often is viewed as a moderate who is willing to compromise to get legislation through Congress.

Huckabee also likes to refer to Republican House Speaker Newt Gingrich of Georgia, who is more controversial than Dole and much less willing to compromise.

So is Huckabee a Bob Dole Republican or a Newt Gingrich Republican? "I am neither," he said. "As a minister, I have seen human suffering. Much of what I did as a pastor was to counsel those who were down and out. We have to make sure the policies we pass in Congress are fair and just. At the same time, we must make sure they encourage people to work and get off the welfare rolls. It's not easy to accomplish both tasks."

How is Huckabee different from the political novice who took on Bumpers three years ago?

"I'm a lot tougher," he said. "This will be my fourth statewide race in five years. I've walked through fire, and the scars are there. I know how painful being in the public arena can be. But I'm not as susceptible to criticism as I was then. And I have a deeper appreciation for government after having presided over the state Senate. Government is a process, not a sporting event. We have to learn to look at things in the long term, not just to the next election."

Straw poll and Southwest lure GOP women

By T.J. Sullivan
TRIBUNE REPORTER

The National Federation of Republican Women has secured 15 voting machines to conduct a presidential straw poll Sunday at Albuquerque Convention Center.

But the poll is just one of several events expected to draw more than 2,000 convention attendees to Albuquerque next weekend.

Mariachi musicians and Western singers have been booked to help entertain conventiongoers during the opening ceremony Friday. Tours of Santa Fe have been arranged.

And Isleta Gaming Palace, which donated 2,200 canvas bags to the convention, will offer shuttle rides to the casino.

There's serious business, too: workshops on campaigning and other political topics.

And five of the nine Republican presidential candidates are scheduled to speak.

The federation will not endorse a candidate, said Gwen Poe, co-chairwoman of the convention. But results of the straw poll, she said, should offer a good indication of where the candidates stand with Republican women.

Poe said 250 volunteers have organized the three-day event, which has drawn more than 2,000 registrants — the largest crowd in the convention's history.

"I think we can attribute that to the speakers, the women that are involved, to the straw poll, the candidates and to the lure of the Southwest," Poe said.

CONVENTION EVENTS

The National Federation of Republican Women's convention starts Friday and runs through the weekend at the Albuquerque Convention Center. Non-federation members can attend and vote in the straw poll Sunday if they pay the $225 convention fee. On-site registration will be taken at the Convention Center, where all scheduled events will be conducted.

The events include:

Friday — Opening ceremony and reception at 6:30 p.m. Guest speakers include New Mexico Gov. Gary Johnson and Republican National Committee Chairman Haley Barbour. Anyone can attend for $30.

Saturday — General session, "Women in the Majority Party," begins at 8:30 a.m. Speakers include Jo Ann Davidson, speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives; Susan Golding, mayor of San Diego; and Sandra Mortham, Florida secretary of state.

Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico will address the convention at the noon luncheon. Luncheon tickets are available to non-convention attendees for $40.

Several workshops will be conducted throughout the afternoon, including "The Changing Role of the County Chair in the Majority Party" and "Women, Business and the Majority Party."

Sunday — Five of the nine Republican presidential candidates are expected to address convention attendees. A straw poll will follow.

A luncheon celebrating the 75th anniversary of women's suffrage will begin at 12:30 p.m. Texas Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchinson is scheduled to speak. Luncheon tickets are available for non-convention attendees for $40.

'Tough call' of scheduling keeps 4 candidates from GOP forum

By T.J. Sullivan
TRIBUNE REPORTER

Several Republican presidential candidates, including Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, have made scheduling choices this week that could hurt their standing with GOP women.

But political analysts and campaign managers say candidates have to make such difficult choices at this point in a campaign when they're trying to raise money and bolster support.

Four of the nine Republican candidates have declined invitations to the National Federation of Republican Women's convention this week in Albuquerque.

The federation, often referred to as the "backbone of the Republican Party" because its members tend to the bulk of grass-roots campaign duties, boasts about 112,000 members nationwide. The convention already has registered more than 2,000 people, making it the largest Republican women's convention in history.

The National Federation of Republican Women, which opens its convention Friday in Albuquerque, has registered more than 2,000 people, its largest gathering ever.

The convention, which is celebrating the 75th anniversary of women's voting rights, begins Friday and is set to include a presidential straw poll Sunday. The nine announced GOP candidates for the 1996 race were invited to speak to convention attendees before the vote.

But the invitation was declined by Dole, conservative columnist Pat Buchanan, California Rep. Robert Dornan and Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter.

Candidates who are expected to attend are former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, Ambassador Alan Keyes, Indiana Sen. Richard Lugar, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm and California Gov. Pete Wilson.

Bryan Flood, spokesman for Alexander's campaign, said the event is a priority for the former education secretary.

"It's an opportunity to address an influential group of grass-roots Republicans," Flood said. "It's hard to pass up any chance you have during the campaign like that. These are Republican leaders, women from across the nation who are really the people who help drive our party's grass-roots efforts."

F. Chris Garcia, a professor of political science for 26 years at the University of New Mexico, said he thinks the federation is "an extremely important group for anyone that is seriously a candidate to address."

"There are many reasons why (candidates) should, and not very many reasons that I can discern why they wouldn't make this a priority," he said.

Please see FORUM/A6

Three of the four no-shows cited scheduling conflicts for not making the meeting. Dole's campaign could not be reached for comment.

Terri Cobban, Dornan's campaign manager, called the conflict a "disaster."

"He loves the group," Cobban said. "They are the reason he is probably in Congress. They started him off. They are big supporters for him. We are really depressed that we aren't making that function."

Norm Ornstein, a resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research in Washington, D.C., said such scheduling problems are common at this point in a presidential campaign.

"Every day, as you move closer to the nomination, you have tough calls," Ornstein said. "One of the things you've got to take into account is this is a stage when candidates are hyper active and super busy."

Diana Daggett, a political consultant who doubles as campaign manager for New Mexico Sen. Pete Domenici, called scheduling "the toughest job in the world."

He said some candidates missedthe Christian Coalition meeting this last weekend in Washington because of scheduling problems.

Ornstein said that because the federation does not take a political position on controversial issues such as abortion, he did not think candidates would strategically avoid the group.

Diana Daggett, a political constant who doubles as campaign manager for New Mexico Sen. Pete Domnici, called scheduling "the toughest job in the world."

"Everybody that you turn down you're hurting," Daggett said. "Those decisions are critical and difficult. You have to make assessments between very good opportunities."

Daggett said she doesn't know if all four candidates had made mistakes by not attending.

"Since I have no idea ... what that (scheduling) conflict is, it would be impossible for me to assess whether they made the right decision or not," she said. "I'm sure that for every candidate that is not attending, not being here is a hand-wringing decision for them."

Dornan will be attending a fundraiser in Delaware.

Charles Robbins, a spokesman for Specter, said his candidate regretted not being able to attend but was committed to events in Iowa.

Buchanan's press secretary, Greg Mueller, said his candidate was committed to an event in Arizona long before the invitation to the convention arrived.

"Arizona is a very important state for us," Mueller said.

Mueller said he didn't think the scheduling choice was a mistake. He said Buchanan will speak to the "largest women's organization in the country," Concerned Women for America, on Sept. 22.

Some disappointed abortion wasn't topic

By T.J. Sullivan
TRIBUNE REPORTER

Bea Francoeur didn't have any complaints about what was said at the National Federation of Republican Women's convention.

It's what wasn't said about abortion that bothered her.

"The Republican party platform states that it's a pro-life platform and I would like to see how the officers of the National Federation of Republican Women ... feel about the issue," said Francoeur, a New Hampshire resident and one of more than 2,300 Republican women who attended the convention this weekend in Albuquerque.

Presidential candidate Alan Keyes, who spoke to convention attendees Sunday morning, was the only one who addressed the issue all weekend. His emotional 15-minute speech promoted the abortion-rights stand and garnered loud applause.

But many women at the convention, like Francoeur, said they thought the federation needed to be talking among themselves about it, too.

Abortion-rights Republican groups rented booths and distributed literature at the convention. And many women said they discussed it unofficially among themselves as a primary concern.

Ellen DeVore, a Florida Republican who supports abortion rights, said she was 99 percent happy with the convention. But, she said, she could feel the rumblings of those who wanted to discuss abortion.

"I have felt like I'm sitting in the middle of a NOW (National Organization for Women) convention," DeVore said. "I found this pretty scary.

"They have avoided the issue and yet it is the underlying current."

Several people said they want the federation to approve a resolution asking the Republican

Gramm: Every child must learn English in school

By Rachel Smolkin
TRIBUNE REPORTER

The winner of the National Federation of Republican Women's presidential straw poll says teaching English should be a top priority for American schools.

"I want to commit full resources to ensure that every child in our schools learns to speak English as quickly as possible and can take their classes in English," Texas Sen. Phil Gramm said in an interview Sunday.

If this goal is accomplished, Gramm said there won't be any need to put English on the books as the official language of the United States.

"We'll make it the official language if we teach English (in schools). If we put laws in place, that won't mean anything unless we're also teaching it."

Rival presidential candidate Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas recently said English should be declared the official U.S. language and "alternative language education" should be ended.

Gramm stopped short of calling for an end to bilingual education, saying teachers and administrators know best how to do their jobs. "I want education parents, I don't want to be an education president," he said.

He also did not directly endorse Proposition 187, the controversial California law that Republican presidential candidate Gov. Pete Wilson helped put in place.

Proposition 187 ends most public services to illegal immigrants, including education and non-emergency health care. It is being challenged in the courts.

"If we do our job and stop illegal immigration, then states won't have to try and do it themselves," Gramm said.

He highlighted his own efforts to double the size of border control in Texas as a way to tackle the problem of illegal immigration.

His top priority, though, is to balance the federal budget.

Deficit slashing has been an important issue to Gramm for many years.

In 1986 — when he was a freshman senator — he sponsored the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill to try to balance the budget.

TRIBUNE REPORTERS

Texas Sen. Phil Gramm was too busy to wait for the results of the National Federation of Republican Women's straw poll.

But, many women said, at least he showed up.

That probably contributed to Gramm's hearty victory in the federation's straw poll Sunday at the Albuquerque Convention Center. He collected more than twice the votes of the second-place finisher, former Tennessee governor Lamar Alexander.

Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, who did not attend the federation's convention, came in a close third, trailing by one vote.

"We were disappointed that Bob Dole didn't show up," said Pat Tautfest, an Oklahoma Republican. "I think he should have made a greater effort to show up, or at least send somebody."

Bernadette Reeves, vice president of the Delaware Federation of Women, said she was "hugely disappointed in Dole."

"You're talking about 2,300 women getting together and his not being able to give us an hour," Reeves said. "I think it hurt him not to be here. There's a lot of influential Republican women here."

But the straw poll probably won't hurt the candidates who did poorly, several campaign officials said last week.

"I think in most cases, straw polls have very little relevance and don't serve as indicators about what's really going to happen come the caucus," Alexander spokesman Bryan Flood said last week. "We don't put too much stock in straw polls."

Terry Holt, press secretary for Indiana Sen. Richard Lugar, said straw polls are "really only a speculative exercise."

Many women said Gramm and his wife, Wendy, worked hard for their victory.

In addition to Gramm's speech, he printed up special signs and stickers that proclaimed "Women for Gramm", be sponsored a breakfast Sunday morning for the convention's 2,300 attendees, and his wife was an active participant in the convention.

Making personal contact was the key, several women said.

Wendy Gramm said she and her husband consider the federation a vital part of the Republican Party.

"These are the people who really make the difference in the Republican Party," Wendy Gramm said. "These are the workers."

At the start of his speech, he esented her with a bouquet of wers. He then set a tone on isues that was echoed throughout ost of the candidates' speech-s — personal responsibility, family values, welfare reform and crime.

Gramm made promises that some women said sounded unreasonable.

"At the end of my first term, we are going to have made such a dramatic change in crime and punishment in America that my momma will be able to take those bars off her windows,"

Gramm said.

In addition, Gramm repeated the classic campaign promise of cutting taxes and balancing the budget.

"I will make balancing the budget my No. 1 priority and if I don't do it, I won't run for re-election," he said.

Session Finished: Constitution Vote Set for Dec. 12

Arkansans to Decide

Stephen Steed
News Capitol Bureau

LITTLE ROCK — Arkansans will decide in a Dec. 12 special election whether to call a constitutional convention, Gov. Jim Guy Tucker announced Friday.

The Dec. 12 date gives rather short notice to citizens who want to campaign in their Senate districts for the 35 positions alloted for statewide elected delegates. The filing period for those elected positions begins at noon Monday and ends at noon Nov. 2. Candidates will not run by their political parties.

The setting of the election date is part of a plan approved Thursday by the 80th General Assembly in a special legislative session. It is the next step toward Gov. Tucker's goal of having a new state constitution adopted, replacing one written in 1874 and amended 73 times since.

This will be the first special election concerning a new constitution or to call a constitutional convention since voters in 1918 rejected a new document.

Between those dates, candidates must:

• File candidacy statements and other routine paperwork with the Secretary of State's office.

• Collect the signatures of 200 registered voters in their Senate districts. Those petitions must also include the voter's street address and date of birth. Candidates would be wise to gather more than 200 signatures, because the Secretary of State's office and county clerks will strike the names of signees who are found not to be registered voters in the candidate's Senate district.

• Pay $25 in filing fees, to be used to help defray the cost of calling and holding the convention, including the special election.

All delegates will be paid $82 for each day the convention is in session, in addition to a 30-cents-a-mile reimbursement for their round-trip travel to Little Rock once a week. The opening date for convention hasn't been set but, by law, the convention cannot meet for more than 32 days. The convention, if called by voters, must also occur sometime between Jan. 2 and March 15.

Potential candidates can receive the appropriate forms and other information from the Secretary of State's office at 682-5070 or from their local county clerks.

Candidates must be at least 21 years old, registered voters and residents of the Senate district in which they are running for at least a year.

In the special election, voters will be asked in the same ballot question whether to call the convention and to approve a slate of 26 legislator-delegates who have yet to be named by House and Senate leaders. Voters also will elect the 35 other delegates on a statewide basis. A majority 'no' vote on the first question kills the convention.

Should a convention be held — and if it produces a document — Tucker will decide when to submit the proposed constitution to a ratification vote. Tucker can choose either a special election, likely to be held in the early spring, or the November 1996 general election.

Miss Arkansas' Red-Ribbon Message To Students Is to Avoid Drug Abuse

Kay B. Hall
The Morning News

You control what your body does, was the message Paula Montgomery, Miss Arkansas, told students at Central Junior High School in Springdale.

She was the honored guest at an assembly that kicked off a week of drug-free education and activities for Red Ribbon Week at Central, Walker and Jones Elementary schools. She said she was happy to stand up for living drug-free.

It's not OK, she said , to abuse our bodies, and despite what students might think, alcohol, she said, was very much a dangerous drug.

"I was a brought up a strict Baptist. I went away to the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. It is known as a party school. I belonged to a sorority and had never been a drinker or smoker," she said.

After attending the Fayetteville school for two years, she became second runner up in the Miss Arkansas pageant. At 19, she went to Hot Springs with friends to attend a rush party at a sorority where champagne was served, and where she says, she made a very big mistake.

"I thought, I'm cool, this is no big deal."

But it turned out to be a very big deal. She became really sick and asked her friends to drive her home.

"There's no other way to put this. I threw up," she said.

And it isn't pleasant holding your head outside a car to throw up and then to see blue lights flashing behind you, to be pulled over and be told to get out of the car — and be too sick to stand up straight.

"I was sicker than a dog. That's not cool. I went for a ride in a cop car and was thrown into the drunk tank for an hour and two minutes, the worst time in my whole life. I kept this from everybody. No charges were made, and I never told my parents. I didn't think anyone would ever have to know."

But when she enrolled in UA at Little Rock and entered the Miss Arkansas pageant again, her director, Bob Wheeler, called her to tell her the NBC Little Rock television affiliate had been digging into Garland County records and planned to air her indiscretion on television. A rumor that she was arrested on a DWI charge was circulated and began a nightmare for her. She knew she had to tell her parents the truth before they began to hear the lies.

Both were supportive but angry at her, not for mak- ing a mistake (drinking) but for not telling them ab- it. Mistakes can be forgiven, they said, but trust c- to

Conway businessman picked as state Republican chairman

BY LARRY AULT
Democrat-Gazette Staff Writer

Conway businessman Lloyd Stone was picked as chairman of the state Republican Party on Saturday and vowed to make the GOP the majority party in Arkansas.

Stone was elected at a Republican State Committee meeting in Little Rock, where he said, "We must move very quickly."

The state GOP is pushing to elect more Republicans to state and national offices, including the seat that retiring U.S. Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., will leave.

Taking note of the growing numbers of Republicans holding state and national offices, Stone said the GOP has made great strides during the past 30 years to make Arkansas a two-party state.

"Arkansas is a two-party state," and GOP is preparing to become the majority party, he said.

Vice Chairman Phyllis Kincannon of Maumelle served as acting chairman until Saturday's meeting.

Fort Smith lawyer Asa Hutchinson resigned the chairman post in September during his third term. He expressed an interest in seeking Pryor's seat.

However, fearing he would split the GOP vote, Hutchinson decided not to run for the Senate seat after Lt. Gov. Mike Huckabee announced his candidacy for Pryor's seat in October.

Stone, who is in the nursing home and real estate development businesses, has been the state GOP's finance chairman. He will complete Hutchinson's two-year term, which expires in December 1996.

Stone said the Republican Party's Victory '96 Committee, headed by Little Rock lawyer Sheffield Nelson, is "at work to ensure we have the funds to match the Democrats."

Stone said the state GOP is asking Republican county committees to match the money supplied by the state party to GOP candidates seeking office.

"We must ensure those candidates are adequately funded," Stone said. Explaining how the GOP is attempting to get its message out to newspaper editors around the state, he said the party must be open to people who feel disenfranchised from politics without compromising its positions.

Stone, referring to conservative Democrats who may not feel at home in the national Democratic Party, said it is important to bring them into the GOP.

"The best hope today for America is the Republican Party," Stone said.

Essay contest offered for junior high students

Accountability in Government is the topic for the Arkansas Federation of Republican Women's Ninth Americanism Essay Contest open statewide to students in the seventh, eighth and ninth grade, according to AFRW State Essay chairman Tammy Hensel of Pine Bluff.

Students participating in the contest will be asked to discuss how elected officials are held accountable for their actions in our political system. Essays will be judged at local and state levels. State winners will receive U.S. Savings Bonds as first, second and third place prizes.

Honorable mentions will also receive certificates. Benton County winners will be given cash prizes.

"The purpose of this contest is to encourage students to become more politically aware, as they are our future leaders," said Hensel.

All junior high or middle schools in Benton County have been contacted and entries from each one of the schools will be received by the deadline, Jan. 15, 1996. Local winners will be announced by Feb. 28 and state winners by April 10.

40th Anniversary

Arkansas Federation of Republican Women

We proudly celebrate forty years of continuous affiliation with the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW). This important relationship began in 1955.

We, the Arkansas Federation of Republican Women (AFRW), were founded in 1948, nearly seven years prior to an affiliation with NFRW.

Since the beginning of this affiliation we have enjoyed the strong and dedicated leadership of eleven presidents. Some are still with us and continue to provide important counsel. Others have completed their life on earth but the spirit of their legacy provides us with an important source of courage to continue our mission.

Our mission is to promote good government that is responsible to and responsive to a conscientious citizenry. Our strategy to accomplish this mission has been and remains the creation of a strong two-party system in Arkansas. We do so with advocacy and information and by identifying, training, supporting the election of more Republicans to public offices.

The celebration of this fortieth anniversary should serve as a symbol of our renewed commitment to this mission. This renewed commitment shall be enhanced by those who served before us, both as leaders and as members and as friends. This will be reflected in the results attained in the future.

THE STRUGGLE

Amid an environment of fear, intimidation, and serious economic pressure, a small group of women, with vision and tolerance for sacrifice, founded the Arkansas Federation of Republican Women (AFRW). They endured a long and painful struggle to meet these requirements to affiliate with the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW). Their greatest struggle was to establish a local unit within each U.S. Congressional district within Arkansas. There were women in these locations with the desire but such a public association with Republicans would probably have interferred with their husbands' and/or family's abilities to achieve economic success.

Brave, determined women survived this struggle with an enormous amount of special aid from the NFRW. The affiliation was consummated and notable progress began.

Original clubs that comprised the AFRW during its acceptance to the NFRW included ten local units. The included the first organized, Pulaski County Republican Women (1953) and concluded with Garland County, Washington County, Boone County, and Union County (1956). Also included were Baxter County, Searcy County, Clark County, Faulkner County and Hot Spring County (1955)

THE LEADERSHIP

As you marvel at the incredible accomplishment in the face of an apparent insurmountable struggle, the answer is embedded in the profile of our leaders. Such leadership began upon the foundation laid over the years of struggle, 1948 to 1955, under the most able leadership of Louise Rohan and continued today under the firm leadership of Mary Harvey.

It is important to note that throughout this period most past presidents serve two terms, the maximum terms allowed under the by-laws, an indication of superior acceptance by the membership.

1956 - 1959	Louise Rohan	1959 - 1963	Marian Smith
1963 - 1967	Leona Troxell	1967 - 1971	Dorothy Webb
1971 - 1975	Jerri Pruden	1975 - 1977	Evelyn Thomas
1977 - 1981	Suzanne Wernick	1981 - 1985	Kitty Jean
1985 - 1989	Doris Holke	1989 - 1993	Toni Phillips
		1993 - Present	Mary Harvey

All of these leaders were endowed with critical traits of leadership: Character, charisma, experience, know how, and commitment.

They were endowed with a willingness, even desire, to serve. They were endowed with great vision, strength, courage, humility, wisdom, and industry. Each set timely and appropriate goals and developed a sound comprehensive plan to attain those goals. Finally, they were extremely judicial as they selected committee chair people to complement the slate of officers that each election yields. This allowed for the formation of excellent leadership teams.

The current leadership team, headed by Mary Harvey, continues in the tradition of service that AFRW has experienced in the past.

THE ORGANIZATION

The AFRW has evolved from a struggle to establish enough local units to qualify for affiliation with NFRW to better than thirty clubs and a collective membership of more than eleven hundred. AFRW is officially represented on the central committee of the Republican Party of Arkansas.

Much work is done by members of the AFRW to help elect officials to public offices -- on the state, county, and local levels -- as well as, to the U.S. Congress. At times we've played a critical role in the election of the President of the United States. This has been acomplished more efficiently with the implementation of the AFRW's campaign management workshops, many hours of campaign work, and many donations of funds and other important resources.

During the years leading up to our fortieth anniversary, certain improbabilities have occurred: The election of a Republican Governor on two occasions (''Win'' Rockefeller and Frank White); the election of lieutenant governors and the continued improvement of Republican representation in the State's Assembly; the election of many officials in Congressional Districts other than the Third Congressional District, the so-called ''Republican-Safe'' district.

THE FUTURE

In the tradition of the AFRW's legacy and the spirit of today's AFRW membership, we look to the future with much enthusiasm. We have a vision that we will enter the 21st Century with a local unit of this Affiliate in every county in Arkansas. We have a vision that each of these units will work to win at least one county-wide office for a Republican candidate.

Our vision, for the 21st century, includes the election of one of our very own to a viable office of the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW). We include, in our set of objectives for the future, a Republican woman from Arkansas to the U.S. Congress.

Motivated by the struggle of those that preceded us ... Disciplined by the leadership of those that emerge from among us ... assured by talented and industrious members and friends -- we continue the phenomenal growth that keeps us a viable political organization.

We shall bring about a strong two-party system in Arkansas by accumulating more Republican wins ... such a system is required to achieve and maintain responible and responsive government ... consistent with the slogan of NFRW ... Politics makes it happen; women make it work.

We encourage all of our members and friends to join us in our celebration of our 40th Anniversary.

This is truly a memorable occasion.
We appreciate the role that everyone has played in this momentous event. We especially applaud the efficient and hospitable efforts of the Garland County
Republican Women as hosts.

Finally, we acknowledge the recognition accorded our celebration by the National Federation of Republican Women, more particularly, the personal visit by our National President,
Charlotte Mousel

Hutchinson takes Senate oath

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Arkansas' first Republican senator since Reconstruction took the oath of office Tuesday, leading a dramatic change in the makeup of the state's congressional delegation as it convenes for the session.

U.S. Sen. Tim Hutchinson, R-Ark., who was born in Gravette and lives in Bentonville, was sworn into office shortly after noon in front of the dais on the floor of the Senate chamber.

"It feels very good. It's very exciting," said Hutchinson, who filled the seat of retired 18-year Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark.

Hutchinson said he was honored to have been elected, and added that formal committee meetings of the 105th Congress began Tuesday.

"It's a great privilege and honor to be sworn-in today as the first elected Republican senator from Arkansas," he said. "It's a great opportunity. ... In the next six years, as we go into the 21st century, it's going to be enormous challenges facing America. And I'm so honored to be able to work for Arkansas to BENTONVILLE — Two Benton County residents were among the 14 people provided U.S. Senate Gallery passes by new Arkansas Sen. Tim Hutchinson.

The two, long-time Hutchinson supporters watching the ceremony from the Senate Gallery said they were thrilled to have been present for the historic Senate ceremony.

"He had 14 passes and we were two of them," said Geri Allen, former president of the Benton County Republican Women's Club. She and Reta Hamilton of Bella Vista, another Republican activist, were the only Benton Countians other than Hutchinson family members who received sought-after passes for the ceremony, Allen said.

I looked around that gallery and I saw how few people got in there. ... I felt so humbled.

New senators were sworn-in in groups of four on the Senate floor. Vice President Al Gore administered the oath to Hutchinson, who was born in Gravette and lives in Bentonville.

Hutchinson also provided passes to eight family members — his wife, his three sons and his daughter-in-law, his mother, a sister, his mother-in-law and father-in-law — and one
